DEFINITION OF BASIC TERMS

INTRODUCTION

This synthetic code of conduct exists only so the Marketing Portal can be tested without using any real company document. Every sentence in it was written for testing and should never be quoted as policy. It follows the usual layout of a code of conduct so that the reading aid can be checked.

ARTICLE I

PURPOSE AND COVERAGE

SECTION 1. OBJECTIVES

This section sets out, for testing purposes only, how the sample company expects every employee to approach honest and careful work. The wording is invented and does not describe any real policy of any bank.

Supervisors are expected to explain the rule on honest and careful work to new staff during orientation and to remind teams of it at least once a year, keeping a simple record of the briefing.

SECTION 2. PERSONS COVERED

This section sets out, for testing purposes only, how the sample company expects every employee to approach who is covered by this sample code. The wording is invented and does not describe any real policy of any bank.

Supervisors are expected to explain the rule on who is covered by this sample code to new staff during orientation and to remind teams of it at least once a year, keeping a simple record of the briefing.

ARTICLE II

INFRACTIONS AND SANCTIONS

SECTION 1. CLASSIFICATION OF INFRACTIONS

Infractions in this sample are grouped as Grave, Less Grave and Light, depending on how serious they are and how much harm they could cause to the sample company, its clients or its people.

CONFLICT OF INTEREST

An employee who is unsure whether an interest conflicts with the sample company should ask the people team before acting. This paragraph is a test of a sub-heading inside a section.

SECTION 2. KINDS OF SANCTIONS

A. REMINDER – A spoken note that points out a light infraction and asks the employee not to repeat it. This is invented wording.

B. WRITTEN NOTICE – A letter that records a light infraction and explains that repeating it may lead to a higher sanction.

C. SUSPENSION – Time away from work without pay for a set number of working days, used for more serious infractions in this sample.

D. SEPARATION – Ending the employment relationship for a cause allowed under the sample code and the law.

ARTICLE III

INFRACTIONS AGAINST THE NORMS OF CONDUCT

CHAPTER A

INFRACTIONS AGAINST NORMS ON HONESTY

SECTION 1. GRAVE INFRACTIONS

1. Changing a sample record so that it no longer shows what really happened, in order to gain something.
2. Taking property that belongs to the sample company, a client or a co-worker.
3. Giving false statements during a fact-finding review of an incident.

SECTION 2. LESS GRAVE INFRACTIONS

1. Using a sample company system for a purpose it was not approved for, without causing a loss.
2. Sharing an internal sample document with someone who does not need it for work.

SECTION 3. LIGHT INFRACTIONS

1. Forgetting to log a routine task in the sample tracker on time.
2. Leaving a workstation unlocked for a short period.

CHAPTER B

INFRACTIONS AGAINST NORMS ON WORK HOURS AND DECORUM

SECTION 1. GRAVE INFRACTIONS

1. Leaving an assigned post during a critical shift without telling anyone, causing a serious disruption.

SECTION 2. LESS GRAVE INFRACTIONS

1. Being absent without notice for two days in a row in this sample scenario.

SECTION 3. LIGHT INFRACTIONS

1. Arriving late to work more than the number of times allowed in a month under this sample code.
2. Not wearing the sample identification card while inside the office.

ARTICLE IV

DISCIPLINARY PROCEEDINGS

SECTION 1. REPORT OF INFRACTION

This section sets out, for testing purposes only, how the sample company expects every employee to approach reporting a possible infraction. The wording is invented and does not describe any real policy of any bank.

Supervisors are expected to explain the rule on reporting a possible infraction to new staff during orientation and to remind teams of it at least once a year, keeping a simple record of the briefing.

SECTION 2. HEARING

This section sets out, for testing purposes only, how the sample company expects every employee to approach giving the employee a fair chance to explain. The wording is invented and does not describe any real policy of any bank.

Supervisors are expected to explain the rule on giving the employee a fair chance to explain to new staff during orientation and to remind teams of it at least once a year, keeping a simple record of the briefing.

DEFINITION OF BASIC TERMS

1. Sample Company – means the fictional organisation used only for testing this portal.
2. Employee – means any person on the fictional payroll of the sample company.
3. Working Day – means any day from Monday to Friday that is not a holiday in this sample.
